19 cricket squad and went on a tour to England. In the 3 days ODI, he scored an average of 105 runs and came back as a winner. With the same zeal, he played against Pakistan in under 19 cricket team and became a permanent fixture by showing his quality batsmanship over and over again. In April 2007, he made his debut in interstate T20 Championship and became the highest score for his team. In coming year, March 2008 he was made the captain of India's under the 19 cricket team. With this team, he went to play world cup under 19 in Malaysia and returned home victorious. When MS Dhoni gave up on T20 captainship and one-day captainship, Virat Kohli was chosen as the Captain of Indian Cricket Team. The right-handed batsman is ranked as one of the world's most famous athletes by ESPN, and by Forbes, he is titled the most valuable athlete brand. He has been achieving great success since long and played for Royal Challengers Bangalore in the Indian Premier League and soon was selected as the teams captain in 2013.

Virat Kohli is the second most remarkable athlete in the world. He became the Co-owner of Indian super league FC Goa and International Premier Tennis League Franchise UAE Royal. He is also the brand ambassador of London-based, social networking ventures sports Convo. Virat Kohli is married to Bollywood actress Anushka Sharma.

ALBERT EINSTEIN

The great scientist and physician "Albert Einstein" were born in the city of "Ulm, in Wurttemberg, Germany on March 14, 1879. The parents of Einstein lived in a world having no electric light. He was born when Thomas Edison invented the electric bulb.

Einstein began speaking late when he was only 3-year old. The parents of Albert Einstein want to see their son become a doctor. But they were so worried about the developmental issue of their child. As a student, he didn't show any remarkable results. The grades were only passing. He was renowned and top students in Mathematics and science only.

At the age of 16, he was determined to take admission in electrical engineering. But instead of electrical engineering, he entered in ETH Zurich Polytechnic at a 4-year program of teaching in mathematics and physics. He always skipped classes because he didn't like to attend classes. He always presents in beer halls and coffee houses.

To pass exams, he copied all class notes from "Marcel Grossmann" that got him remarkable grades in group transcending Grossmann too. He passed exams and obtained his degree along with teaching diploma in physics and Mathematics. He then starts working as a professor's assistant, but no one accepts due to rebellious character.

The most important approach is that despite all setbacks and rejections from people and the educational system, he always continued to fight against all things. He kept focuses on theories, experimentation, and studies. This was short and one of the impressive stories of a child that was unable to speak until he was 3-year old. He was a rebellious student teenager that always skip classes. He was one of the frequent students of beer halls and coffee houses. The man who was jobless for about 2-years. Einstein understood the fact that if you are somehow different from other people, people always oppose you. So, he never afraid of difficulties and love to do his own work by his own will without follow other people. He was hardworking, determined and never gave up. He was mad scientist, Nobel prize winner and underestimated professor. His name now used as the synonym to word genius. I hope you have enjoyed the impressive biography of Albert Einstein and it will give you the best strength to achieve your own goal without the opposition of other people.
