HARBOR GRACE, Nfld., Aug. 3.
The attempt of John Henry Mearns to break the Graf Zeppelin's globe-circling record of 21 days 8 hours and 26 minutes came to an untimely end just before dawn here today when the monoplane City of New York, in which he hoped to fly to Berlin, was completely shattered in a crash-up before getting off the ground.

The plane in which his pilot, Henry J. Brown, was flying on their 1,900-mile flight from London, just outside Dublin, and in which they started their quest for the record from Roosevelt Field yesterday, ran 2,000 feet diagonally across the air field here, then suddenly to one side, pumped up the righted runway and crashed into the side of its fuel tanks.

Mearns and Brown were in each got a severe concussion. The plane tumbled along for 100 feet, scattering hummocks of earth and brush underfoot. The plane caught fire, but the crash heavily with 450 gallons of gasoline.

Terrier Mascot Vanishes
When the flyers climbed from their seats to view the wreckage of their hopes they found no trace anywhere of Tailwind II, the Sealymur terrier mascot of the trip, given to Mearns by Mary Pickford. It is believed that the dog was not hurt, but took to the woods in terror.

It was 3:45 a. m. (New York time) when the record-breaking attempt ended in disaster. The Harbor Grace flight committee had Mearns wait half an hour for daylight before taking off, but Mearns and Brown were so eager that they ignored the advice.

It is not definitely known what caused the crash, but it is thought that a defective or punctured tire may have caused the City of New York to get out of control and jump the runway.
