Green Initiatives - Planting of Bamboo Sapling at College Department of Botany, Vimala College, Thrissur.

Bamboo is considered as the important plant for carbon sequestration. Bamboo has high carbon sequestration rate, because of their fast growth rates, giant woody bamboos “are already considered effective CO₂ absorbers”. As part of Green initiatives, Department of Botany initiated the planting of Bamboo plants in the College premises. This programme is initiated by Dr

Harilal, Associate Professor, Department of Botany Calicut University and Dr Manju NL Assistant Professor, Department of Environmental Studies Christ College Irinjalakuda.
