

FIELD PROJECTS

The UG and PG students are doing Projects/dissertations during the last year of their programme and submit their report at the end of their final semester.

Our department always use this opportunity to inculcate research interest among the students and make them socially responsible through research and social interactions. So they always undertake field projects in which they experience selection of study area, sample units and do sample surveys among individuals/ households/social groups.

The purpose of a field report in the social sciences is to describe the observation of people, places, and/or events and to analyse that observation data in order to identify and categorize common themes in relation to the research problem underpinning the study. The content represents the researcher's interpretation of meaning found in data that has been gathered during one or more observational events. It is important to build a bridge of relevancy between the theoretical concepts learned in the classroom and the practice of actually doing the work you are being taught to do.

Our department assign a field report with the intention of improving the students' understanding of key theoretical concepts by applying methods of careful and structured observation of, and reflection about, people, places, or phenomena existing in their natural settings. Field reports facilitate the development of data collection techniques and observation skills and we help the students to understand how theory applies to real world situations. Field reports are also an opportunity to obtain evidence through methods of observing professional practice that contribute to or challenge existing theories.
