"The song of our footprints"

From the Writer's desk

Every journey begins with a single small step. Longer or shorter, easy or difficult, each journey possess specific destinations. The distance towards it may be sometimes unknown. The very direction, the path, or even the purpose may be forgotten. Passing through these rough & tough paths, seldom occurs falls, deep injuries and great pains. Even then, if we pursue a curve of smile, the trodding paths will get straightened; the elevated barriers will be leveled and the toughest ones will alter its textures. So that, you will see your own footprints demarcated on the path behind you and your goal in front of you.

This is such a footprint, the ways which we trodded, the gems we collected, and the pursuit of joy we experienced.
