Across the world, food processing sector has a large potential for growth and socio economic impact as it leads to creating jobs for rural poor and thus reduces the burden on agricultural sector. It also helps in reduction of wastage, value addition, foreign exchange earnings and enhancing manufacturing competitiveness.

About the session

This one day seminar is designed to provide an opportunity for the students of B.Voc Food processing to interact with the leading and promising entrepreneurs and professionals in the field. The session seeks to enhance students' understanding about the prospects and challenges in their industry and thus, empower them with the knowledge of how to incorporate academic training into practice. The session is envisioned as a motivating endeavour that would encourage students to achieve excellence in their field of choice.
